Open stage

Deadline of Application: July 15th 2019

Please be aware that later entries cannot be considered.

You will receive our confirmation as soon as possible, but latest by July 30th.

Our open stage offers the chance to perform for those who dare to make a clear step towards research in the field of contemporary ice skating. Your performance might have been already shown on a stage, but it can also be work in progress, an experiment or pure improvised research.

There are just a few formal requests from our side.

First of what we need:

- Title or subject of piece
- approximate length of the piece
- number and name of performers

Please send us the concept of your performance when applying. You should focus on research and experiments around skates, ice and gliding bodies. Please define the context and your means.

You can send us up to 3 fotos and / or a video link with a maximum length of 3 minutes. We will not accept video files, just links to the online video (not obligatory!) The technical quality of the video can be simple. The videos might show better than written words what you are working on.

Even if you are not sure if your work will fit into our conception of the open stage, please contact us.

- Duration of the show: 1 ½ - 2 hours
- Practice sessions will be provided during the festival weekend
